

Softer Hair? Yes, Please!

by Teen Vogue

December 03, 2009

I am the most indecisive person about the color of my hair. I tend to switch it up a few times a year, going all out with full color and highlights. Every winter, I usually feel the urge to go back to my roots and be a brunette. But every time I go darker, I instantly regret it. The rest of the winter months are spent slowly going back to blonde. This time, I wised up and decided that I would actually lighten my hair a bit.

With two inches of roots showing, I knew it was time to do something. I headed over to the Ryan Darius Salon with lots of inspiration pictures and a clear idea of what I wanted. Ryan listened and we decided he would cover my roots and add highlights to brighten my face. As Ryan was dyeing my hair, I got a Butter London manicure from the lovely TJ; my favorite color is West End Wonderland. Can you say salon heaven? And believe it or not, my experience got even better when Ryan introduced me to the Goldwell product line. In my experience, dyeing your hair can often leave it dry and unmanageable.

Well, Goldwell's Dual Senses Rich Repair 60 Second Treatment is the fix for this. The insanely rich formula made my hair unbelievably soft. In fact, Ryan saw how much I loved it and let me take a jar home. At the end of the day, I left the salon with blonder and softer hair. Hopefully, this minimal change will tide me over till the holidays. Maybe then I'll take the plunge and go for the long bob I've always wanted!

-NATASHA SPEDALLE Beauty & Health Intern